Japanese Pieris Exhibition at Daitsu-ji Temple

Many buildings at Daitsu-ji Temple, a branch of Higashi Hongan-ji Temple, are designated as cultural properties. The main building and the hall are believed to be the remains of Fushimi Castle and partly embody the ornate style of the Momoyama period. The exhibition is a showcase of Japanese Pieris bonsai plants. Though poisonous, the flowers of Japanese Pieris are tufted like a Lily of the Valley and are very charming. Since Japanese Pieris' bonsai is quite unusual, even in Japan, many people come to enjoy the exhibition in spring.
